VŠTE is a higher education institution based in České Budějovice, in the Czech Republic. It offers full-time and part-time study programs professionally oriented Bachelor and Master degree programmes. It differs from many other higher education institutions in the Czech Republic by placing a strong emphasis on the practical application of knowledge rather than on theory alone.

People at the Heart of a Sustainable Organization

The program focuses on sustainable human resource management, employee well-being, and the needs of a multigenerational workforce. It explores how different generations may vary in their values, motivation, communication, recognition preferences, and expectations of the workplace.

Participants will learn how HR professionals and managers can create healthy, inclusive, and supportive working environments that strengthen engagement, collaboration, professional growth, and long-term employee well-being while helping to prevent excessive workload and burnout.
